MAN BURNED TO DEATH IN RAILWAY CRASH

Motorman Pinned Under Flaming Interurban Car Wreckage Near Toledo.

FIRE BALKS RESCUERS

Freight and Passenger Cars Meet in Fog; Overturned Stove Starts Blaze.

By The Associated Press

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 15—Will Thurston, 62, motorman of a Lake Shore Electric company freight car, was burned to death early today when his car collided with a passenger car of the same line at Hayes siding, three miles east of Toledo during a heavy fog.

Erich Schwann, an employe of the company who was riding on one of the cars, was seriously burt.

Pinned in Wreckage

Thurston, who lived at Hessville, was pinned in the wreckage of the two cars and was burned to death before rescuers, driven back by the flames, could reach him.

Although members of the car crews were reluctant to discuss the accident, Russell Baker of Fremont, motorman of the passenger car, said his view was obstructed by the fog.

Both cars were burned to their trucks in fire which followed the crash.

Cars Telescoped

Both cars were going about 15 miles an hour when they collided, witnesses said. The cars partly telescoped, but did not leave the rails. An overturned stove in the freight car set fire to the wreckage.

James Brown, Toledo patrolman, sprayed his face with a fire extinguisher in an attempt to save Thurston. The dying man reached out with his arm as though he wanted to take the extinguisher.

Others on the passenger car, and injured slightly, included John Rineck, Ed. Jenk, Bert Bridge, Sard Poorman and Charles Hanville, trainmen going home, and Motorman Baker.

The crash was heard for a mile and the flames also could be seen from miles around.

FATHER WINS JURY VERDICT OF $1,000

Son Is Defendant in Damage Suit Brought for Death of Brother.

A verdict of $1,000 for the plaintiff was given by a jury in common pleas court yesterday in the damage case of Orville E. Shonk, administrator of the estate of Russell Shonk, a son, against Clay Shonk, another son, as the outgrowth of a crossing collision last year in which Russell was killed.

While the son was made defendant, the object of the suit is reported to have been to force an insurance company to pay liability compensation to the estate of the deceased youth.

The father charged in his petition that Clay had wilfully and negligently driven an automobile in which both sons were riding, in front of a speeding passenger train on the Kenton avenue crossing of the Cincinnati division of the Erie railroad.

The law firm of Donithen & Donithen represented the plaintiff and attorneys Grant E. Mouser Sr. of Marion and Ralph Klapp of Columbus were counsel for the defense.

PLEA REJECTED

Daugherty Must Stand Trial for Alleged Mishandling of Funds.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON C. H., Nov. 15 — Hal S. Daugherty, former president of the closed Ohio State Savings bank, must stand trial on 15 indictments charging him with mishandling funds of the bank.

A jury which heard his plea for abatement of the indictments returned a verdict against him late yesterday after hearing testimony of the grand jurors who voted the true bills last October.

Daugherty sought abatement of the indictments on the ground that two special auditors of the bank, Cecil L. Hall and Frank G. Schaefer of Cincinnati, were admitted to the grand jury's quarters. The grand jurors testified that Hall and Schaefer were called before them, but were not present during deliberations.

Daugherty also was expected to be arraigned today on two new indictments returned against him this week.

TWO SISTERS, SEPARATED 43 YEARS, END SEARCH WITH HAPPY REUNION

One Living in Crestline Finds Other Here at Home on Uncapher Avenue.

MRS. MARY FINLEY MRS. EMMA KLAHN

THE distance between Crestline and Ashland kept two sisters apart for 43 years, one in complete ignorance that she had any family, and the other knowing that she had a sister somewhere but with no way of finding her.

Mrs. Emma Klahn 46, of Crestline and Mrs. Mary J. Finley, 56, of 572 Henry street, formerly of Ashland, told their story yesterday at the home of Mrs. Finley's son, D. J. Finley, at 614 Uncapher avenue.

There was joy in the Finley home several weeks ago when a woman knocked at the door and asked if Mary Finley lived there. In an instant the two sisters, parted for 43 years, were in each other's arms, sobbing and laughing and trying to tell each other all the things that had happened in the long interim.

Their strange story began when Emma, then known as Aurelia, was 3 and Mary was 13. Then they were Aurelia and Mary McCormick, two of the five children of Mr. and Mrs. John McCormick of Lucas, near Mansfield. Their mother was taken ill and three of the children, Ann, Dan and Aurelia were placed in the Mansfield Children's home. Jim and Mary were old enough to work out for a living.

AURELIA was adopted by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schmidt of Crestline, and the family never saw her again. The Schmidt's renamed her Emma Catherine Schmidt and taught her to speak German so fluently that when she went to school her companions called her "Dutch Emmy."

DRY LAW REPEAL PROPOSAL DROPPED

Definitely Abandoned by Hoover Commission in Preparation for Report.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—Repeal of the eighteenth amendment has been definitely discarded by President Hoover's law enforcement commission as a solution of the present prohibition problem.

Commission members today had reached certain tentative conclusions—all of them subject to change—as to what they believe should be done to improve the situation surrounding the dry law. Such an eventuality as repeal, however, was not included among them.

An authoritative denial has been entered also, to the oft-repeated rumors that the commission as a whole will recommend four per cent beer, or that it will urge a national referendum to determine sentiment upon the prohibition law.

Keep Plans Secret

Whether a final agreement will be reached upon some plan to strengthen the present system, or whether some form of modification will be urged, however, remained a question which only the 11 members of the commission could answer, and the secret was guarded with the same care that has surrounded their 17 months of prohibition deliberation.

Word has come from within the commission ranks, nevertheless, that these 17 month of investigation have uncovered "astounding" things, and that "there will be no pussyfooting" in the forthcoming dry law report.

Form certain members also has come assurance that the report surely can be laid on President Hoover's desk by Jan. 1, and probably before.

Fess Again Attacked

While members of the commission, in recess until Nov. 24, continued informally the work of preparing the report, another attack was made on the Republican party leadership of Senator Fess of Ohio, because of his dry stand.

Representative Britten, Republican, Illinois, last night said Fess should resign as chairman of the party's national committee immediately, turning management of the Republican machine over to "some one who can properly sense public opinion."

Earlier in the day the Ohio senator had been defended for his position by Senator Brookhart, Republican of Iowa.

OHIO WESLEYAN IS DEFENDANT IN SUIT

Fatal Wreck in Wyandot County Causes Action for Damages.

By International News Service

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 15 — Ohio Wesleyan university, of Delaware, was sued for $25,000 damages today in the Franklin county common pleas court here as the result of an automobile accident.

The suit was filed by the estate of Frank E. Tharp, of Columbus, alleging that an automobile driven by an employe of the university forced Tharp's car off the road near Little Sandusky, Wyandot county, Aug. 18, 1929.

The petition further claims that Tharp suffered a fractured skull in the crash and died several days later. The university's auto, according to the petition, was driven by Karl Meister.

TO HAUL WATER

Ohio Village Must Transport Supply 40 Miles To Insure Protection.

By The Associated Press

BLANCHESTER, O., Nov. 15—Water for this drouth stricken village will be hauled 40 miles until such time as sufficient rain falls to refill the city's almost depleted reservoir, under an arrangement completed last night between the city council and the Baltimore & Ohio railroad. The railroad has agreed to haul water to the village from the Little Miami river. Water in the reservoir dropped to 41 inches yesterday. It was said by officials that this level must be kept at 30 inches to insure fire protection.

2 HELD IN ROBBERY BOUND OVER TO JURY

Robinson and Huston Plead Not Guilty; Bonds Fixed at $5,000.

Dick Robinson, 26, of near Brush Ridge yesterday was bound over to the Marion county grand jury on $5,000 bond when he pleaded not guilty in municipal court to a charge of robbery. Robinson waived preliminary examination.

Dick Houston, 21, a neighbor, pleaded not guilty to the same charge and his bond was set at $5,000 pending a hearing scheduled for next Wednesday.

The two men are accused of having held up three young couples in an automobile near the Grand Prairie township school house early Tuesday morning.

Robinson was arrested by Sheriff John J. Francis and Deputy Fred Williams within an hour after the holdup, while Huston was arrested later in the day.

The three couples were robbed of watches and other valuables by two masked robbers, one of whom drove the machine a distance down the road to prevent pursuit. The other accompanied him in a Dodge coupe in which the two had been riding.

Hunter's Dog Is Stolen While Owner Is Absent

FOR several days C. Miller of 450 Lee street made careful preparations to go hunting this morning. Before sunup today, he was "all set" with a gun, hunters trappings, and a trusty beagle hound on a 12-foot rope. But the best laid plans go astray.

He stopped at a neighboring house to pick up a companion hunter, tying the dog in the front yard. When he returned both dog and rope were gone. Some one else went hunting with the hound.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 15 — Despite a drizzling rain in many sections of the state, thousands of Ohioans went into the field today—the first day of the 1930 hunting season—to shoot rabbits, fowl and other game.

Carl McAuley, 23, of Columbus, was the first fatality reported. He was killed instantly early today when a shotgun held by his companion, Roy R. Mairise, 26, was discharged accidentally, as they were hunting on Big Darby creek, 13 miles southwest of here. Mairise told authorities the gun was discharged when the trigger struck a bush.

GETS PEN SENTENCE

By The Associated Press

URBANA, O., Nov. 15—Carl D. Croft 42, St. Paris baker, today was sentenced to from 18 to 20 years in Ohio penitentiary on charges of shooting to kill George Bruner, a prominent farmer last Aug. 26. Croft was denied a new trial by Common Pleas Judge Lowell C. Bodey.

NATION'S RESOURCES CALLED INTO ACTION

Dollars Once Rallied in War Emergency Now Ammunition in Prosperity Campaign.

The "Buy Now" campaign, spreading throughout the country in an organized movement to reestablish prosperity, has been likened to the nationwide rallying of the citizenry in support of America's cause during the World war.

Those at the head of this peacetime project believe that it will prove fully as effective as the one which accomplished such marvelous results during the historic military conflict.

Just as the numerous drives to raise funds and purchase Liberty bonds for financing America's part in the war brought into action the nations financial resources in a volume of almost unbelievable magnitude, so can the same forces provide the means for winning the country's war against business and industrial depression, it is predicted.

Marion in the Ranks

Marion, like all other American communities, contributed its part in full measure to the wartime flow of money and is now on its way to perform just as effectively in providing funds for helping speed the wheels of trade and industry into high gear.

Local business concerns, with all civic organizations and other community groups cooperating, have started things going by launching

OHIO WESLEYAN TEACHER HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Daniel Hammond Seriously Injured in Accident at Five Points.

LOSES CONTROL OF CAR

Student Driver Misses Bucyrus Road Curve, Plunges from Highway.

Daniel Hammond, 23, instructor at Ohio Wesleyan university, is in serious condition at City hospital today as the result of an automobile accident last night at Five Points, east of Marion. The accident occurred about 11 p. m.

Hammond suffered a fractured skull. He and three Ohio Wesleyan students were returning to Delaware from Bucyrus. Jack Fawcett of Delaware, a university student and son of a Delaware mortician, was driving the car.

According to Fawcett's story this morning, he lost control of the Hudson coach at the curve at Five Points. The car plunged into a ditch, turning over. Hammond was the only member of the party seriously injured. The other young men sustained slight cuts and bruises.

Hammond, whose home is in Louisville, Ky., is an instructor in the economics department at the university. This is his first year at the university. He received his Ph. D. degree from the University of Chicago in June.

He was taken to the W. C. Wilcox home until he could be taken to City hospital. Dr. Grace M. Jordan of Columbus, a niece of Mr. Wilcox, attended him before a Marion physician took the case.

A report from City hospital at noon today stated that his condition was not as serious as it had been diagnosed early this morning.

W. C. T. U. PRESIDENT URGES ENFORCEMENT

Stresses Need for Educational Work, Discounts Wet Gains in Speech.

By The Associated Press

HOUSTON, Tex., Nov. 15—Its battle gage flung, the Women's Christian Temperance Union turned today to departmental matters in its fifty-sixth annual national convention here.

Mrs. Ella A. Boole, the president in her annual address last night, emphasized the need for educational work and called upon delegates to remember the new slogan, "observance and enforcement—not repeal," a phrase which dominated her speech.

The president of the United States, meanwhile had sent his "cordial greetings" to the convention and expressed his "profound sense of the vale of their work both in behalf of higher ideals of life and public service and aid of law enforcement."

Before the president read her message, Governor Don Moody and Governor-elect Ross Sterling announced their fealty to the cause of prohibition.

Mrs. Boole dismissed wet gains in the general election as having been caused not solely by the prohibition issue, but by a number of others, including the tariff, hard times and personalities.

RAINS FORECAST

SCALDS FATAL TO CHILD, 3

FALLS IN BOILING WATER

Accident Occurs in Kitchen of Home; Funeral Services Sunday.

Special To The Star

MORRAL, O., Nov. 15—Scalds sustained when she fell into a pan of boiling water today had caused the death of 3-year-old Mary Alice Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Miller of southwest of Big Island.

The child died last night at the parents' home, 24 hours after having been scalded about the body between the arms and knees.

The mother, who was washing clothes in the kitchen, was unable to say how the accident occurred. The child had been playing in the kitchen and while the mother's back was turned toppled into the pan containing boiling water.

Funeral services will be held in the home Sunday at 2:30 p. m.

The child was born in Marion July 4, 1927. Besides the parents the following brothers and sisters, Edward, Evelyn, Francis and Arlis, survive.

Marion Woman Sustains Triple Injury at Home

Mrs. Edward Crowley of East Center street is recovering from three separate injuries sustained at work yesterday. She was badly burned about the hands when electric wiring of a washing machine formed a short circuit. In attempting to jump away from the machine she upset the washer, scalding herself. The weight of the falling machine fractured her ankle. She is improving at her home.

VALUATIONS ALSO LOWER

County, with Loss of Road Levy, To Feel Loss Worst.

Marion city's tax rate for 1930 is $23.82 as compared to $24.80 last year, County Auditor Earl E. Thomas announced today following approval yesterday by the state tax commission of rates for the 45 political subdivisions in the county. This is $23.82 for each $1,000 worth of taxable property.

The lower rate is due to expiration of the two-mill road levy and the failure of voters last week to approve a substitute one-mill road levy. They also failed to approve a one-mill city levy which, if passed, would have placed the city rate at $24.82.

Valuation Also Cut

While the rate is lower and the city tax also is reduced from approximately $50,000,000 to $47,000,000, the city's tax income will be decreased only slightly, it was reported at the auditor's office. This is due to the fact that the corporation will share 9.88 mills of the 23.82 mills as compared to only 9.50 of last year's 24.80. The decrease will be felt in the county's share, which will be dropped from 4.24 mills to 2.51, largely on account of the expired two-mill road levy. The school's share increased from 10.53 to 10.93 mills.

The 9.88 mills on a $47,000,000 valuation will bring the city about $465,000 in tax income in 1931 as compared to the $477,000 now being received.

Thirty-seven of the 45 districts show decreases in their rates, due to the road levy's expiration and to other shifts. The eight showing increases are Caledonia school district, Caledonia village, Pleasant township school district in Marion township, Pleasant township schools, Morrall village school district, Morral village, Caledonia village school district in Scott township, and Caledonia school district in Tully township.

Township Rate Same

The rate for Marion city school district outside the city limits is 14.50 for 1930 as compared to 15.52 for 1929, while the rate for Marion township schools is 10.62, the same as last year.

The 23.82 rate for Marion city is made up of 10.93 for schools, 9.88 for the corporation, 2.51 for county purposes, .40 for state purposes and .10 for township purposes. In 1929 the 24.80 rate was composed

BROKEN WIRE CAUSE OF MINE EXPLOSION

Investigation Reveals Millfield Blast Resulted from Current of Trolley.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 15—The gas explosion which rocked the Millfield mine of the Sunday Creek Coal company and took the lives of 82 miners and officials of the company, was caused by a broken trolley wire coming in contact with a rail, E. W. Smith, chief of the state division of mines reported today.

Smith said the discovery was made by state mine inspectors and was confirmed by an examination of the broken wire by Prof. D. J. Demorest, of the metallurgical department at Ohio State university.

The open lamps carried by William E. Tytus, president of the Sunday Creek company and other members of an inspection party who were killed a few minutes after they entered the mine were in no way responsible for the blast, Smith said.

Predicts Pickrel Will Win in Vote Contest

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 15—George Neffner, statistician of the secretary of state's office, today said he was certain that William G. Pickrel of Dayton, Democrat, had been elected lieutenant governor by a majority of less than 1,000.

Neffner said the official count of ballots will be completed by Tuesday but on the face of the uncomplete reports he believed that Pickrel had defeated Lieutenant Governor John T. Brown of Mechanicsburg.

MARION MAN IS HELD ON BURGLARY CHARGE

Sam Birchem Awaits Grand Jury Action in Franklin County Courts.

Sam Birchem of Marion is awaiting action of a grand jury in Columbus on a burglary charge brought against him late in October after the burglary of a wholesale grocery store in that city.

Birchem was arrested as Sam Barber and was suspected at the time of being Sam Birchem. Identification through finger prints proved him to be the owner of both names.

Report of the identification was received from Columbus this morning by Marion police. The report says Birchem was arrested Oct. 31, 1928, for burglary in connection with the grocery burglary there.

PROFESSOR DIES

Husband of Former Marion County Woman Claimed.

Carroll H. May, professor of economics at the University of Michigan, died yesterday at 7:40 p. m. in a hospital at Ann Arbor, Mich. Death was caused from heart trouble from which he had been suffering for about two years.

Funeral services will be held Sunday at 3 p. m. at An Arbor and interment made in the cemetery at that place.

Surviving are the widow, Mrs. Mary Gray May, formerly of Marion county, and three children, Richard, a student in the University of California, Miss Marian May, a junior in the University of Michigan and Robert at home. Mr. May was a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan university at Delaware.

Mrs. Fred Hoch of west of the city, a sister-in-law of Mr. May, and Eugene H. Moore of 265 Bellefontaine avenue, also a relative, will attend the funeral.

WASHINGTON — Among those who will attend a conference at the White House on what is best for babies are Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh.

NEW YORK — Douglas Brown, an Edison questionnaire man who gave up a place in the wizard's laboratory to become an artist, is giving his first exhibition of paintings.

LONDON—Dame Louise McIlroy, noted physician, disagrees with Miss Ishbel MacDonald, the prime minister's daughter, who has come out with a preference for the term "bachelor girl." Dame Louise thinks "spinster" is a good old-fashioned English word much better than the modern term.

BRIDGEPORT, Nebr.—Having cut a higher card, A. M. Webb, Democrat, has been given a certificate of election as sheriff. At the polls he tied Sheriff E. L. Davis, Republican. Election officials decided to abide by the cards, but Davis is going to make a contest.

ST. CATHERINES, Ont.—William Wilson is a motorman who stuck to his post in the face of death. His car struck an open switch at high speed. A work car was ahead. Wilson remained on the job and slowed down his car so that none of the 15 passengers was hurt. He was seriously injured himself in the collision.

NEW YORK—George Artiss believes that instruction in schools by means of talking movies would improve diction and English. He gave his views in a paper accepting a medal awarded by the American Academy of Arts and Letters for good diction on the stage.

Mayo Leads Radnor Grid Team to 32-6 Victory

RADNOR, Nov. 15—Led by the powerful plunging of Mayo, Radnor High school gridders yesterday chalked up a 32-to-6 victory over Sunbury yesterday afternoon. Mayo scored three touchdowns while Milligan and Harsh each crossed the goal line once.

CLASSES HOLD PARTY

GREEN CAMP, Nov. 15—A seventh and eighth grade party was held at the school here Thursday night. An auction conducted by Superintendent John A. McKnight was one of the features. Refreshments were served.

CLASS MEETS

Twelve members of the Willing Workers class of the Lee Street Presbyterian church met last night with Miss Leona Huntsman of Avondale avenue. The time was spent socially and with games in which Miss Virginia Marshall won honors. Refreshments were served by the hostess. The class will meet in two weeks with Miss Margaret Evans of Thompson street.

STEEL STOCKS SET NEW HIGHS

Stock Market In Forward Movement After Slight Slump.

By International News Service

NEW YORK Nov 15—The market made short work of the overnight accumulation of selling orders in the trading today and was once more ready to resume its forward movement.

The public utility stocks and the industrials felt the weight of early profit-taking dropping off a point or two but in most cases the lost ground was recovered before the end of the first hour, once again the week-end business reports were more encouraging in what they predicted than in what has actually been accomplished along the line of trade recovery.

United States Steel moved up to a new high on the recovery to 147¾. The amusement stocks and the radio stocks were also in good form with Loews up at 57¾ and Fox up at 31¾.

Radio's spurt to above 17 was a feature of the low-priced specialties. Better buying of the oil stocks followed reports of the decreasing flow of crude oil and the prospects of a discontinuance of the gasoline price war that has been raging for the last three weeks.

LIVESTOCK

Chicago

By The Associated Press

JURY HOLDING FATE OF MAN IN SLAYING

Gehring Pleads for General Homicide Verdict in Sherman's Death.

Fate of John Gehring, 24 confessed slayer of Louis Sherman, Marion and Columbus insurance man, today rested in the hands of Common Pleas Judge Henry L Scarlett of Franklin county following Gehring's plea yesterday to a general charge of homicide when arranged in Judge Scarlett court

Gehring confessed to killing Sherman last April 18 in a Columbus confectionery during an attempted holdup

Sherman only a week before had come to Marion to open a branch of the insurance agency of which he was an employe.

A hinged wire stand has been invented to be attached to electric flatirons to prevent them scorching ironing board covers and, as the irons do not touch other metal, their lives are prolonged

PART OF GRAIN MARKET SAGS

May and July Deliveries Drop in Spite of December Strength.

By International News Service

CHICAGO Nov 15 Notwithstanding strength with which prices for December delivery of wheat were upheld May and July deliveries dropped to day to fresh low record quotations Active buying sparked by government sponsored agencies took place in December contracts but quotations in bins were without such support, and were responsive to advices telling of pressure of supplies at Liverpool and in Canada Opening unchanged to 2c lower, Chicago wheat futures except December underwent an additional sag afterward, but then rallied somewhat Corn started ½@1¼ off, and continued weak

Tending to drag wheat values downward today were advices of hand indicating that stocks of wheat in Canada are now 27 000 000 bushels larger than a year ago not including amounts still left on farms On the other hand 45 000 000 to 50 000 000 bushels of Canadian wheat were reported as yet unthreshed and much of it likely to be unused except as feed Meanwhile, receipts of wheat at Winnipeg today were nearly double those of a year ago

Rallies shown at times today in wheat prices were associated more or less with official announcement of proposed Canadian federal action looking toward new measures for market stabilization Corn and oats weakened with wheat

Provisions went lower, influenced by the action of grain

To the voters of the 13th-31st Senatorial District

The official count in the State Senatorial contest has finally been tabulated and it appears that I have been defeated by a small margin. Regardless of defeat, I take this occasion to thank those who in any way assisted in my campaign and to thank the voters generally for the very excellent vote which I received throughout the District.

Congratulations to the winners and congratulations to the people of the District upon the excellent type of men chosen to represent them in the Ohio Senate for the next two years.

"...If there EVER was a time to BUY..

IT'S NOW

This matter of spending is a "round robin" in which the dollar or its equivalent in wages, profit, value or gratified desire returns to the original spender. But when one breaks the chain by keeping the dollar in the pocket and refuses to pass it along it only influences others to do the same thing and it leaves the next in line totally without means to continue the chain.

"Keeping money in circulation" implies just what it says...the circulating of money. When you buy, the merchant requires more goods to replace what you have taken away. He draws on the manufacturer; the manufacturer increases production and employs more labor; as the laborer earns more, he buys more of clothes, food, furniture, amusement ...the commodities which you sell or produce and hence the dollar you spend comes back to you.

Spending Money NOW Will Help Keep People at Work! SAVE - but DON'T save it ALL! Don't keep your neighbor out of work By NOT Spending What YOU CAN!

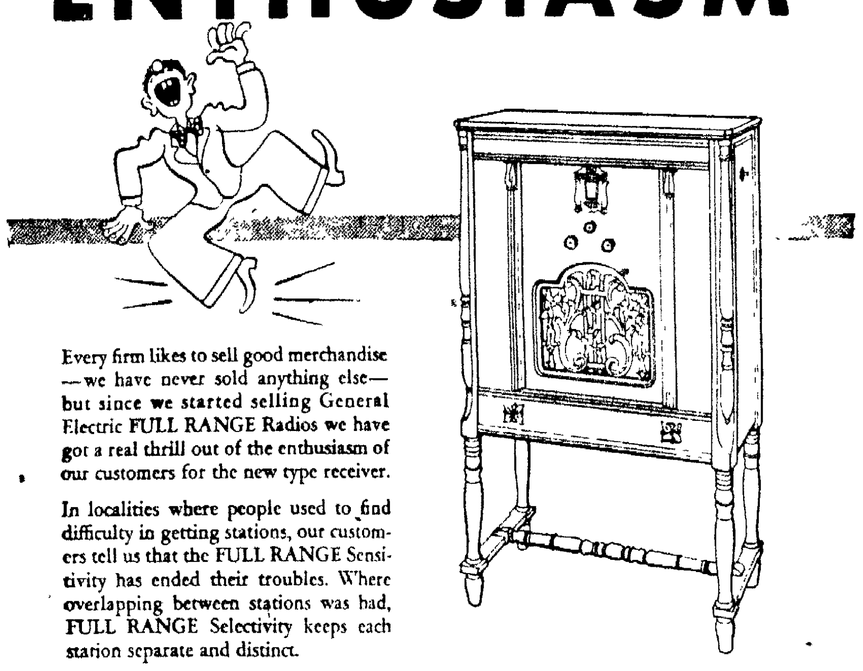
"never before have we known such ENTHUSIASM"



Every firm likes to sell good merchandise—we have never sold anything else—but since we started selling General Electric FULL RANGE Radios we have got a real thrill out of the enthusiasm of our customers for the new type receiver.

In localities where people used to find difficulty in getting stations, our customers tell us that the FULL RANGE Sensitivity has ended their troubles. Where overlapping between stations was had, FULL RANGE Selectivity keeps each station separate and distinct.

And the greatest enthusiasm of all is for the new rich natural beauty of FULL RANGE Tone.

We'd like YOU to hear this modern General Electric receiver.

Why not drop in for a few minutes next time you are passing?

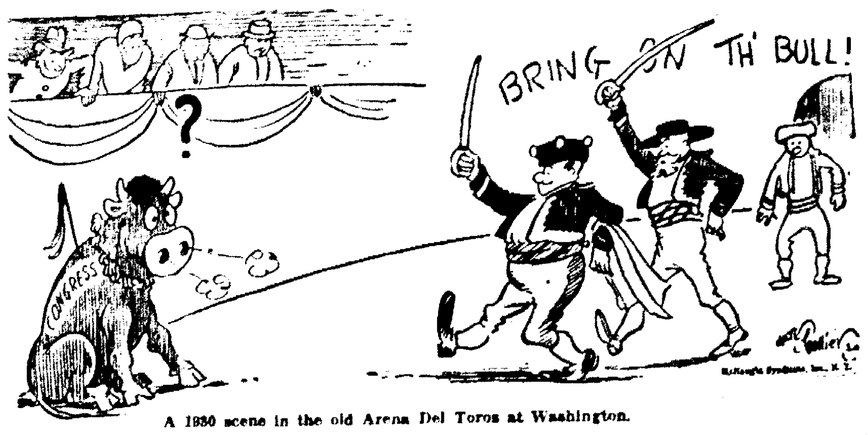
Will Recounts Election Disasters and Discovers Several New Heroes Sent Into Old Denate Bull Ring



A 1930 scene in the old Arena Del Toros at Washington.

"Pink Whiskers" Again Back To Grace Stately Governmental Hall.

BY WILL ROGERS.

WELL all I know is just what I read in the papers, and all I have read in the last week is about the Democratic uprising of November 4th. It was my birthday and the Boys of the party really did themselves proud in my honor. The Republicans were looking for a punch in the jaw, but not for a kick in the pants at the same time. Why there was men beat at this wake that thought they had a deed to their seat. We will kinder start in alphabetically with the disasters and take em in that order, starting with Illinois.

An old Democratic friend of mine J. Ham Lewis, who has red whiskers, and a green vest to match, used to be in the Senate away back during the days when we was fixing it so there would never be another war. If my Emily Post Etiquette book serves me right I think he is about the only Democrat in some distance to get a red whisker in that stately hall, and after all these years he is going back. His facial adornment has shed from a Clara Bow red to a kind of a Henna grey, and the old vest has got many an egg spot concealed behind its pearl buttons. But Ham can curry one and bathe the other and he will make a new entrance into the old "Arena Del Toros."

Forgot Her Check Book.

It wasent only that he got back in there, but it was the spectacular manner that he did it. The Republicans had their strongest Woman up against him, Ruth Hanna McCormack. She had spent a few hundred thousand in the Primaries, but evidentally forgot to spend any on the race. That would be like spending all your money in Taxi fare to go to the ball game, but none to spend to get in after you got there. But Ruth made a mighty fine race, and maby its just as well she is not in there. I dont think a woman belongs in there.

Its funny how a smart Political woman like her couldn't have guessed right on the Prohibition thing. How anybody could go wrong on what Illinois would do is beyond me. Ham he wont make em as good a Woman as Ruth would, but he will make em a good man.

Then continueing alphabetically we come to Oklahoma. Another old resident of the Senate got back after all these years. Our Blind man, Senator Gore, he used to be a fixture in there from our Country. Then when he happened to be able to see further than the mob during the war why he lost out; now when the mob has caught up with him, and they can look back instead of having to look forward why they send him back in there. That gives Oklahoma two Democrats which is of course as it should be, for we are a liberty loving people.

You going to hear an awful lot in the next few years about a man from South Dakota named Boulow. He is a Democrat and from South Dakota. Now thats like a Zulu being discovered on the Behring sea. He is a comical old rascal, with a lot of humor and about twice as much common sense as humor so he will be out of place two ways in the senate. Watch him and remember the name, B-e-u-l-o-w, and if he is to speak anywhere near you don't miss him.

Presidential Timber.

Course the old timers got back in without even opposition like Pat Harrison, and Joe Robinson of Arkansaw. They will be in the Senate when the Farmers get relief. Joe Robinson is mighty liable to be the Democratic nominee in '32. It will be between him and Franklyn D. Roosevelt, and they are both mighty fine men. Joe if they want a dry, and Roosevelt if they want a wet. But the wets seemed to kinder swamp everything at this melee and are gaining strength every day, so in '32 it looks like the wet Candidate will have the edge at the Nomination.

Still the west got a long way to go yet. You see those States that voted wet this time were ones that were known to be wet all the time, when you start voting on it all through the middle west and south you will find a different tale, so both Parties will be up against it as to just what to do in '32. They will want to be wet for the wet voters and dry for the dry voters, and they wont know which one has the most votes, and they will be busier than a Bird Dog trying to figure which way to jump.

That gives you a pretty good line on Politics; their personal feelings have nothing to do with it, its which way will the most votes be, I believe a Candidate would go over Niagara Falls if he was sure the wind was with him. (Copyright, 1930. By the McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

Armistice Day Drops Bank Clearings Here

Bank clearings of $535,257.11 for the week ending Friday were a shade under those of the preceding week when clearings totalled $557,801.91.

Loss of one day's clearings resulted Tuesday when banks closed for Armistice day. Clearings the following day were $161,013.45, the highest of the week. Low clearings were reported last Saturday when $54,678.99 was cleared.

T. B. CATTLE TESTS COST COUNTY $5,592

Work Extends Over Two-Year Period; Herds Accredited.

Marion county taxpayers in the last two years paid a total of $5,592.64 for work in testing cattle for tuberculosis, according to figures in the office of County Auditor Earl E. Thomas.

The work extended over a two-year period, $2,848.03 being spent in 1929 and $2,442.47 this year. Tags used in identifying tested cattle cost an additional $302.14.

Most of the expense was for salaries for the state veterinarian who conducted the county-wide test and for his assistants.

The county this year, following completion of the test, was placed on the state accredited area as being free of bovine tuberculosis.

MISS FREELAND IMPROVES

Miss Isabelle V. Freeland of Cleveland, formerly of Marion, is continuing to improve at Lakeside hospital in Cleveland where she was taken Sunday suffering from a fractured skull after she had been hit by a hit-skip driver in the downtown district. The accident occurred last week-end.

Book Reviews

Turning New Pages

WITH EDNA S. DUTTON

ROMANCE abounds in 'Spanish Lover' by Frank H. Spearman which has to do with the life of Lepanto, Don John of Austria the son of the Emperor Charles V and the half-brother of the strange and repellant Philip II of Spain.

Don John's boyhood was spent in obscurity and with people seemingly out of the class in which he rightly belonged but evidently his rearing was in charge of persons who knew of his birth and who also knew of the interest taken in the boy by persons nigh in the country's circles.

That the boy was very close to the emperor is proven by the interest with which the latter followed him and caused him to bring him closer and closer to himself, this same fondness caused him to determine for the boy a life in the Church. Contrary to his father's plans Don John early developed the talents and love for the life of a soldier and at 24 he was the most famous man in Europe and commander of the allied armies.

The love affairs of the young military leader provide an interest aside from his life as a soldier and furnish much of the romance of the book. First there is the lovely story of the boy and the Princess Carmen last of the House of Arcos who sacrificed herself in the Black Plague and second there is the story of Don John and Miriam, daughter of All-Pasha the Turk the great enemy of Christendom.

Color and Romance in New Williams Book

"WHAT the Great Oaks Saw," Ben Ames Williams' new novel, has a touch of glamour combined with much that is modern. It is a story of the pirate Blackbeard and his followers, one of whom goes ashore to do evil work and falls under the spell of the great oaks. What follows has to do with the settlers and adventures, life and living in that day, duels and romance. The setting is a 30,000 acre island off the southern coast of South Carolina and Georgia the home of Dean Harrod and his wife, wealthy northerners. There is a touch of modern romance in the story of Polly Akin the beautiful daughter of millions and the poor young man who glides down out of the skies to the island.

The novel is published by E. P Dutton & Co.

Isa Glenn Has New Novel

ISA GLENN with her new novel has allied herself to the Ellen Glasgow school of southern women novelists, a school intent upon exposing the romantic illusions that lay veiled behind the charm of the old south. "A Short History of Julia" is the author's new book. Julia the heroine grew up among the aristocratic families of a Georgia town, families whose lives never changed. With Julia it was different. She faced her problems and when the time came let her sister Marietta marry the man she herself loved because she realized Carey Gordon did not love her.

"Babbitt" Is Prize Winner

THOSE who claim to know Sinclair Lewis, winner of the 1930 Nobel prize for literature, maintain that despite his 18 years of literary work he is still a boy. His first novel published under his own name was "Our Mr. Wrenn" which came out in 1914 while the author was doing editorial work on newspapers, magazines and in publishing firms. "The Innocents" was published in 1917 and "Free Air" in 1919. It was in 1920 that Mr. Lewis came into the limelight with his "Main Street," listed as one of the outstanding "best sellers." "Babbitt" for which he is said to have received the Nobel prize followed in 1922 and "Arrowsmith" in 1925. "Mantrap" did not create much stir in literary circles with its publication in 1926 and in 1928 the author presented "The Man Who Knew Coolidge." "Dodsworth" was published last year.

Queen Writes Another Mystery

ELLERY QUEEN, author of "The Roman Hat Mystery" comes forward with a spell-binding tale of crime, intrigue and extraordinary deduction in his new book, "The French Powder Mystery." A crowded noon, in front of Fifth avenue's most fashionable department store, while hundreds of sidewalk onlookers watch a demonstration of modernistic furniture in the window, the demonstrator touches a button regulating a concealed wall bed, the bed swings out of the wall and from its dark recess tumbles the distorted, crumpled corpse of a beautiful woman. Queen moves vitally and refreshingly through his own story, a sleuther cynically young man with a genius for placing the veil of commonplaces and arriving at [illegible] proof conclusions, although it is [illegible] who is responsible for the solution of the baffling yarn.

Bravest people on earth—or perhaps, better say, off of [illegible] Safety first is no motto for the aviators.

Miss Eleanor Thompson will play the role of "Mrs. Gray, wife of a missionary among the 'poor whites.'" The remainder of the cast is as follows:

Full Gospel Assembly To Organize Society

A young people's society will be organized Sunday at 6:30 p. m. at the Full Gospel Assembly on Darius street. Rev. B. E. Hillman, pastor, will organize the group.

There were several conversions at the revival services last week, and Rev. Hillman has announced that the services will continue this week, every night at 7:45.

Tonight he will preach on "Alone." Sunday afternoon his sermon will be on "The Rapture." His sermon topics for the remainder of the week are: Monday, "Has God Lost His Power?"; Tuesday, "Justified, Sanctified, Baptized;" Wednesday, "Hellfire and Brimstone;" Thursday, "Heaven;" Friday, "Millennial Dawn;" Saturday, "Gog and Magog."

BOYS' WORKER TO SPEAK

E. V. Donaldson, of Columbus, associate boys' work secretary of the state committee of the Y. M. C. A., will address the Marion County Ministerial association on "The Church and the Boy Problem," Monday at 10 a. m., at the City library. The subject is one in which the ministers, as men who are endeavoring to help the youth of the land, are especially interested.

Many Guests Present at Salem Aid Society Meet

BEECH, Nov. 15—The Rural Salem Evangelical Ladies Aid society met for an all day meeting Thursday at the home of Mrs. C. F. Howser.

In the afternoon Mrs. Henry Baldauf called a business meeting. The devotionals were conducted by Mrs. LeRoy Deminger and Mrs. J. F. Tittelbaugh. There were 14 members of the society present.

The pastor Rev. LeRoy Deminger was in charge of the election of officers for the coming year. Old officers were reelected: Mrs. Henry Baldauf president; Mrs. H. H. Klinefelter, vice president; Mrs. William Krautter, secretary; Mrs. Harley Shuey, treasurer.

The guests present from other churches were, Mrs. Harry Wurrel and Mrs. William Scott of Kirkpatrick; Mrs. Emerson Haley and Mrs. Joseph Mitchell of Claridon. Mrs. Fred Roth of Marion. Other guests were Mrs. Lloyd Irey, Mrs. Margaret Howser, Mrs. Rosan Sergent, Mrs. Bashford Howser and daughter, Mrs. M. A. Denzer, Mrs. C. F. Howser and Minerva and Elizabeth Howser, Mrs. LeRoy Deminger and son, Miss Hazel Shuey, Eileen Gibson, Delbert Ault, Clara Klinefelter, Hazel Baldauf, Donald and Geraldine Halt.

"Bolder words and more timorous meaning never were brought together," said Dr. Samuel Johnson. Sometimes, you find that in diplomacy, too.

Embroidery Club Meets with Mrs. Williams

AGOSTA, Nov. 15—Mrs. Myrtle Williams of south of town was hostess to the Riverside Embroidery club Thursday afternoon. Several papers were read on the origin of Thanksgiving. Those winning prizes in the contests were Mrs. J. L. Cadwaie, Mrs. Gomer Johnson and Mrs. Lyda Withrow. Guests present were Mrs. George Douglas of Iowa, Misses Patricia Ann O'Connell and Marguerite Johnson. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Lyda Withrow in December when a Christmas exchange will be held.

Committees Are Named for Christmas Bazaar

KIRKPATRICK, Nov. 15—The Woman's Foreign Missionary society met at the home of Mrs. Paul Furniss Wednesday afternoon with 10 members present. A prayer was given by Mrs. Ira Beers. Mrs. Harry Mason was program leader. A story of "The Lace Collar" was given by Mrs. Earl Beers. The mystery box was in charge of Mrs. Charles Lemke. Plans are being made for the annual Christmas bazaar at the church Dec. 10. The following committees were appointed: Program, Mrs. T. J. Maxwell, Mrs. William Lemke and Mrs. Paul Furniss, lunch, Mrs. C. L. BIGGER AND BETTER

PRESENTING

CHEVROLET

Today the Chevrolet Motor Company presents the Bigger and Better Chevrolet Six, a new model of the six-cylinder car which has enjoyed such wide popularity.

In both the chassis and body of this new six-cylinder Chevrolet you will find expressed, as never before, Chevrolet's well-known policy of progress through constant improvement.

For—without departing from the basic features which have won the enthusiastic approval of over 2,000,000 buyers—Chevrolet has produced a six-cylinder car which represents an entirely new standard of quality, value and refinement in the low-price field.

Your first impression of the new Chevrolet will be one of striking fleetness, grace and beauty. The car is longer, lower and modernly smart. The radiator has been deepened and its appearance enhanced by a curving tie-bar and chrome-plated parabolic headlamps. The long hood lines sweep back unbroken to blend gracefully into the new Fisher bodies. And never was Fisher's fine craftsmanship more evident than in the bodies of the new Chevrolet Six!

Not only are the smart, graceful, new bodies roomier and more comfortable, but as you study them you will discover many gratifying new features and pleasing refinements—many examples of that painstaking attention to detail which is the basis of true quality.

Mechanically, too, the new Chevrolet Six is a better automobile. The wheelbase is longer. The frame is stronger. The steering is easier. The clutch is more durable. There is a smoother, quieter, easier shifting transmission. In fact, wherever finer materials and more advanced design could add to Chevrolet quality or increase Chevrolet's traditional economy of ownership—improvement has been made. See the new Chevrolet Six—and you will agree that here is *the Great American Value!

TO CONTINUE LOYALTY DRIVE

Second of Series of Special Programs To Be Held Sunday.

The second of a series of six special programs in the second annual loyal campaign at Trinity Baptist church, will be held Sunday. The day has been set aside on the calendar as "Go to Church Sunday." Rev. Lawrence A. Wood, pastor, will preach one of a series of sermons on loyalty, "Loyalty in Church Attendance."

An endeavor is being made to have as complete a record of church attendance as possible for the day. Letters have been sent out to each member of the church in the interest of the campaign, to urge a more loyal attendance to Christ and to all Sunday school and church services.

Sunday night Rev. Wood will preach on a subject in keeping with the campaign, "Mark, the Man Who Came Back." Sunday, Nov. 23, his sermon will be on a Thanksgiving subject, "Loyalty Tested by Appreciation."

Plans are completed for the four following weeks, with special sermons and topics for each Sunday. The second annual loyalty social will be held Tuesday night, Dec. 2, and a Baptist Young People's union rally will be held Dec. 7.

The church calendar for the week is as follows:

Monday, 7 p. m., Boy Scouts at church; 7:30 p. m., Senior W. W. G.; 8 p. m., recital of pupils of Miss Melvina Summers; Tuesday, 2 p. m., Circles No. 1 and 2 meet with Mrs. L. E. ## Insure With Christ

A SERMONETTE
BY REV. J. A. CARRIKER
Pastor Forest Lawn Presbyterian Church.

"He is able to keep that which I have committed unto Him against that day." Timothy 1.12.

INSURANCE companies will insure almost anything you have against loss or damage, but they are not able to prevent the loss or damage. And they only pay you a per cent of your loss or damage.

Jesus insures your life not only against loss or damage, but guarantees you an abundant life in this world and in the world to come. Jesus has established the world's greatest and only real insurance company. Here it is:

CAPITAL—"The unsearchable riches of Christ." Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither has it entered into the heart of man what things God hath prepared for them that love Him.

ASSETS—"The earth is the Lord's and the fullness there of." Jesus says, "All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth."

LIABILITIES—"My grace is sufficient for thee."

INCONTESTIBILITY—"For I give unto them eternal life; and they shall never perish, neither shall any man pluck them out of my hand."

NON-FORFEITABILITY—"He that heareth my words, and believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation; but is passed from death unto life."

ELIGIBILITY—"He that cometh unto me, I will in nowise cast out."

CONDITIONS—"Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved."

PREMIUM—"Without money and without price."

DIVIDENDS—"No good thing will be withheld from them that walk uprightly."

JAPANESE MISSION WORKER TO SPEAK

Dr. James B. Ayres To Tell of 41 Years in Field.

Dr. James B. Ayres, Presbyterian missionary to Japan for 41 years, will speak Sunday at 7 p. m. at the Forest Lawn Presbyterian church. Dr. Ayres is now retired from active missionary work and is devoting his time to lectures.

At the time of Dr. Ayres' going to Japan, Yamaguchi, where he was stationed, was one of the difficult fields. It was here that he laid the foundation of a work which developed rapidly and which won him the respect and friendship of many of the Japanese people. After 20 years of service in Yamaguchi, his field was changed to Shimonoseki.

Forty-one years in the missionary field has given Dr. Ayres a clear understanding of Japan. Prior to his retirement from active service, he was professor in the Osaka Theological Training school in Japan. His friendships there are among all classes, from the peasant farmer to the statesmen that have helped made modern Japan.

Young Peoples Group To Hold Meeting

Newspapers and magazines commenting on the "Buy Now for Prosperity" movement point to several basic features of similarity between the situation now and the one created by wartime emergency.

Then the call upon a militant and patriotic nation brought into effective use a supply of money so tremendous that the American people were amazed at the realization of what could be accomplished when all contributed their share to a common cause.

Then the millions of citizens were stirred into action by such phrases as "Buy Liberty Bonds," "Do Your Bit," and "Give Till It Hurts."

Now the call is voiced in expressions like, "Buy Now for Prosperity," "Idle Dollars Make Idle Men," and "Buy What You Can Afford."

Leaders in the present campaign are virtually the same as those who directed the movement more than a decade ago. Business and industrial executives and community organizations in general are in the forefront of this drive to finance the war on depression just as they did the campaign to provide funds for our military forces. And in both instances the army is the American people and the ammunition American dollars.

The "Buy Now" movement, which started in the city of Muskegon, Mich., as a local attack on business depression, proved so successful there that the idea speedily attracted attention elsewhere and spread to other communities, large and small.

The very fact that it is expanding and sweeping onward is seen as proof of its success, for had it failed to produce results it would have died out in the beginning.

It is taken for granted that the government will not object to the arrangement or insist that producers shall continue reckless competition.

A more important question is this:

Will the companies hold together? Will copper men be able to do what the oil men vainly tried to do?

One mine can produce copper at half or two-thirds the production cost of another mine. One mine will have its copper cost reduced by a large silver by-product.

Will the more fortunate mines be content with their share of business and not try to get more by price cutting, which they can afford and others can't afford?

France is backward in dentistry compared with America, and nothing is more important than the care of teeth in childhood, neglected, unfortunately, in the case of millions of American children.

NO MONEY, DRIVER BRINGS FARE BACK

Alexander Robinson Lodged in City Jail for Failure To Pay Taxi Bill.

Alexander Robinson, alias A. R. King, 50, of Youngstown, bargained for a taxi ride from Marion to Canton last night. He not only got the ride to Canton, but also a return trip which was arranged without any planning on his part.

Today he is in city prison wondering how he will pay a $25 taxi bill which stands between him and freedom.

Robinson, partially blind, and a younger companion asked a driver of the Yellow Taxi Co. here to take them to Canton last night, promising to obtain $25 fare after they arrived in that city.

When they completed the trip to Canton, both left the car but failed to show up with the money. Robinson refused an invitation of Merle Mason, the driver, to reenter the taxi.

Mason called the sheriff at Canton, and the two of them loaded Robinson into the car. Mason returned his passenger to Marion at 2:10 a. m. today, taking him to city prison where arrangements had been made for his arrest.

Officials of the taxi company have not decided what course of action they will take to force payment of the $25.

CAFETERIA SUPPER EARNS GROUP $125

Greenwood Parent-Teachers Give Left-Over Food to Salvation Army.

Over $125 was cleared by the Greenwood Parent-Teacher association in a cafeteria supper served last evening at the school. Approximately 450 were served from 5 to 7:30, and at the close of the serving hour, the food that remained was given to the Salvation Army for distribution among the poor of the city.

Mrs. Frank Knapp, president of the society, appointed committees to take charge of the supper. Mrs. Albert Mautz and Mrs. W. J. Wetzerl were on a social committee. Mrs. O. E. Peters headed a ways and means committee and Mrs. J. C. Turner was program chairman. Mrs. L. D. Clum and Mrs. Carl Leffler were in charge of the rooms and Mrs. Walter Sheeley and Mrs. T. E. Sonnanstine were in charge of refreshment booths. The girls who were assisting were in charge of Mrs. Aud... Fetter and Mrs. Frank Cl...

was chairman of committee to keep the rooms neat.

The blackboards were decorated to add to the attractiveness of the rooms. The association will enjoy a Christmas program at a meeting in the Middle of December.

3 CANDIDATES FILE EXPENSE REPORTS

Time Closes for Listing Expenditures; Donithen Spends $212.

Alfred Donithen, unsuccessful candidate for reelection as prosecuting attorney of Marion county, spent $212.40 in his campaign, according to his expense account filed yesterday with the board of elections.

Clarence O. Hart, unsuccessful Democratic canidate for county recorder, spent $125.60 and Ora McCurdy, winning candidate for re election as county commissioner expended $81.70.

Yesterday was the last day for filing. One candidate, Charles A. Markert, winner for the county recorder's position, has failed to file an account, as well as the Republican county committee.

her of any other family. A sister, Mrs. Pearl Rettig of Galion, now deceased, traced the child and called at the Schmidt home years ago but failed to convince the child that she had any sisters and brothers.

Meanwhile Mary McCormick had married Patterson Finley and became the mother of six children. Each baby brought back to her memories of the baby sister she had taken care of long ago. She knew she was alive, but where?

Mr. and Mrs. Schmidt died, one 16 and the other 10 years ago, and Emma Schmidt who had married and become Mrs. Klahn, began a search for her sister and brothers. Neighbors told her of visits her relatives had made to Crestline to trace her, and finally she heard of her sister, Mrs. Finley, living in Ashland.

A YEAR ago Mrs. Finley, who has been a widow for 23 years, moved to the Henry street address in Marion, and when Mrs. Klahn went to the old home in Lucas, and then to Ashland, she found that her sister was living in Marion. She and her husband hurried here and through the potoffice, traced the address of Mrs Finley.

Their sister Ann is dead but the two brothers, Dan and Jim, are living in Akron, and the two sisters are making plans for a joyous trip to Akron Sunday for a family reunion.

Mrs. Klahn has two sons, Henry and Walter, both living in Crestline, and five of Mrs. Finley's children are living. The living children are: D. J. Finley of Uncapher avenue, Roy Finley of Ashland, John W. Finley of Bellevue, Mrs. Ida Finley Hall and James Finley at home.

Mrs. Finley was born on Feb. 27, 1874, and Mrs. Klahn on March 29, 1884. Mr. and Mrs. McCormick, their parents, have been dead about 35 years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Klahn now live at 116 Diamond street in Crestline.

HUNTER SHOT

H. G. Smith of Galion Injured by Companion; Will Recover.

By International News Service

GALION, O., Nov. 15.—H. G. Smith, 30, proprietor of a local garage, was accidentally shot near here today while hunting with seven other men.

The hunters were all in a thicket, it was said. Four of the men shot at a rabbit at once. One of the shots struck Smith in his arms and legs. He will recover.

The accident was the first of the season which was opened here today with hundreds of hunters taking to the field.

MRS. EMMA GAY DIES AT BROTHER'S HOME

Illness of Several Weeks Brings Death; Funeral Tuesday.

Mrs. Emma Gay, 66, of 528 South State street died today at 6:20 a. m. at the home of her brother, Christian F. Koehler of 488 Pearl street. Mrs. Gay had been ill for several weeks, suffering from complications, and had been at her brother's home during her serious illness.

Mrs. Gay was the widow of John Gay. Her parents were Christian Koehler and Louise Paftley Koehler, natives of Germany. She was born Feb. 9, 1864 in Marion, and had lived here all her life. She was married to John Gay, Nov. 26, 1883 in Marion. They had no children.

She was a member of First Reformed church. Surviving brothers and sisters are Christian F. Koehler at whose home she died, and Miss Elizabeth Koehler of 288 East Walnut street. A brother John Koehler preceded her in death.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 1:30 p. m. at the C. F. Koehler home on Pearl street, in charge of Rev. H. F. Weckmueller, pastor of First Reformed church. Interment will be made in Marion cemetery. The body may be viewed at the Koehler home.

PLAN PROGRAM OF STREET DEDICATION

Main Street Merchants Discuss Celebration; Two Bands To Play.

Details of day and night programs of Main street merchants for the gala opening and dedication of Main street Nov. 25 were drawn up at a meeting of committee chairmen with the plans committee last night at the Kleinmaier Bros. store.

Merchants will offer a number of features in stores during the day, winding up the celebration with an attractive program in the street beginning at 7 p. m.

The street will be roped off for the occasion. Two bands including the Future Farmers of America band, have been obtained to furnish music. Confetti, serpentine, and noisemakers will be distributed among the celebrants.

F. O. Rudolph, athletic director at the Y. M. C. A. will be in charge of numerous games and contests along the street. These will include races, boxing matches, and other athletic events.

Merchants are sponsoring the publication Nov. 24 of a special section in The Star, appropriate to the reopening of the street.

MISSIONARY WORKER TO SPEAK IN MARION

Dr. Robert E. Speer To Address Luncheon Meeting Here Friday.

Dr. Robert E. Speer of New York City, prominent in missionary work in the United States, will speak at a luncheon meeting of the men of Marion city and county, Friday at 11:45 a. m. at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium.

Letters have been sent out by the Marion County Ministerial association, which has called the luncheon meeting, to the pastors of the churches in the city and county, asking them to announce the luncheon and to arrange for their laymen to attend.

Dr. Speer, traveling at present as a representative of the Laymen's Missionary Movement, is senior secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions in New York City.

The luncheon will begin promptly at 11:45 a. m. and close at 1 p. m. Dr. Speer will talk on World Missions. Tickets will be available at all churches in Marion and the county, Sunday. A laymen from the church will be in charge of their distribution.

Dr. Speer declined the presidency of Princeton university to remain in the Field of World Services and was official delegate from the United States at the International Missionary council in Jerusalem last spring, representing also the Foreign Missions Conference of the United States and Canada.

LEAVE DEFICIT

Republican's Outstanding Bills Equal Expenditures of Democrats.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 15.—The recent election campaign left the Republicans with a deficit equaling the total expenditures of the Democrats. Expense statements filed with the secretary of state by the state organizations of both parties yesterday showed the Republican bills were $150,179 compared with $41,885 for the Democrats.

Republicans paid out $131,971 and left bills outstanding of $17,208, including $14,000 borrowed. Thus their deficit is $41,208. The Democrats ended the campaign with a surplus of $6.25.

Republicans received their largest contribution from the party's national committee which gave $25,500. Twenty thousand dollars came from the Hamilton county Republican committee and $4,500 from the McCulloch for Senator committee.

FINAL PLANS MADE FOR GRANGE MEET

Mayor Jones Named Chairman of Entertainment Committee of Convention.

Final arrangements for entertainment of the Ohio State Grange convention here Dec. 8-12 were made when the convention committee of the Chamber of Commerce met in its offices yesterday.

Mayor I. Don Jones was made chairman of the reception committee. Other members of the committee will be announced later.

Persons having rooms in private home which they are willing to rent to convention visitors are urged to communicate with Charles A. Klunk at Hotel Marion.

Christmas decorations and lights which Marion retail merchants had planned for the Yuletide will be in place for the convention, through arrangements with the merchants.

SUPREME COURT TO HEAR ALLER APPEAL

Injunction Suit of Contractor Against City Will Be Given Hearing Dec. 10.

The supreme court of Ohio on Dec. 10 will hear the appeal of attorneys for Louis Aller, contractor, for review of his injunction suit against the city of Marion, B. F. Roller, of the law firm of Ochs & Roller, Aller's attorneys, said today.

Aller last summer sought and obtained from common pleas court an injunction restraining the city from awarding the Main street paving contract to the P. Drake & Son firm on the grounds that their bid for the work was $7,303 higher than his own bid of $50,000.

The third district court of appeals reversed the decision, however. Until the latter court's decision was given the Main street paving was held up for several months.

More WINTER EGGS with CEL-O-GLASS

If you want more eggs in the winter months, use CEL-O-GLASS. In coldest weather it brings warmth and the sun's ultra-violet rays to your layers. This results in healthier birds, lower mortality—and more eggs. CEL-O-GLASS also keeps houses warmer and hens more comfortable during the coldest weather—important aids to good winter egg production.

CEL-O-GLASS pays for itself over and over again, and properly installed will last for years.

Many uses for genuine CEL-O-GLASS

CEL-O-GLASS in brooder houses reduces chick mortality; raises healthy chicks—in hog houses prevents weak legs. Good for dairy barns, cold frames, hot beds, back porches, storm windows, storm doors and sleeping porches.

Call on us for descriptive literature and free CEL-O-GLASS blueprints. Valuable whether you plan to build, remodel or install in present buildings.

Complexities of Radio Advertising.

The less advertising in a program, the greater is its appeal to radio listeners, and an excess of advertising in a program is more of a handicap than an aid in the selling of the goods thus advertised. The most effective radio offering is that which is either free from advertising talks or that into which the advertising is injected so subtly as in no way to interfere with the continuity of the program.

So the members of the Association of National Advertisers, Inc., in session in Washington this week, were told by John Karol, New York City representative of the Crossley interests, as the result of a survey which he has been making for the last six months at the request of and financed by half a hundred members of the association. The Karol report carried the first intimation the National Advertisers have had of the potential and actual results of sponsored broadcasts over the air.

Among other findings resulting from the survey was that whereas a broadcasting organization might claim to reach an audience of 50,000,000, the conditions would have to be auspicious far beyond the ordinary if an audience of 5,000,000 were reached. In other words, claims of broadcasters that they are reaching approximately half the population of the country capable of appreciating a program are not well founded. The survey demonstrated, further, that the wealthier classes of the citizenship pay less attention to radio programs than those in the middle and lower financial levels. In this connection, it was disclosed that but twenty-six per cent of the radio sets in the country were used during daylight hours and but approximately fifty per cent during the most popular hours for listening in on night programs.

Goods sold with a large turnover and which may be obtained at practically all points are better subjects for radio advertising, it was asserted by Mr. Karol, than goods which require a long sales talk, as the purpose of resort to the use of the radio in the case of the former class of goods is to get the public "name conscious." The public simply will not listen to long selling talks.

Lastly, the survey established the fact that there is a definite "editorial" value to some broadcasting stations, the true aristocrats of broadcasting—the programs of which have acquired a reputation for being meritorious and are splendidly put over. Conversely, it was deducted from the survey that some stations as the result of their programs were more harmful than helpful to their sponsors.

All of which goes to show that there are manifest limitations to the possibilities of radio advertising, not only limitations to the amount of advertising which may be utilized, and limitations to the number of stations which may profitably be used, but also limitations to the kind of goods which may be advertised with sufficient return to justify the expenditure. And as there is very general agreement that radio listeners are becoming more and more critical, it is fairly safe to predict that the complexities of radio advertising will increase with the passing years.

The "Buy Now" Campaign.

Until recently, the chief impediments to the campaign to dissipate the present business recession and bring the country back to normal economic conditions was directed toward the encouragement of programs of construction by the government, the states and municipalities and public utilities. The response the country over was gratifying. Great enterprises have been set afoot, but owing to the inevitable delay experienced in construction programs of political divisions in getting under way, the result of these programs are not felt today as they will be in the months to come.

These programs can not do other than work for the lessening of unemployment with a consequent enhancement of the buying power of the American people as a whole. They may prove the chief factor in bringing about the revival of normal conditions, but, even so, they are not without one common defect. The major portion of the construction resulting from them will be costly. It will result in bonded or mortgage indebtedness with an attendant interest charge. In other words, relief accomplished through such programs will be penalized.

This objection can not be raised against the movement inaugurated, Friday, by local business and civic organizations in support of the national "Buy Now" campaign, which has the added virtue of being quicker in results than a construction program, as is being made evident in many cities in which it has been launched.

The "Buy Now" campaign is predicated on the theory that the great majority of the American people have the means with which to buy, but are not buying, holding off either in the hope of being able to secure lower prices or in fear of a prolongation of present conditions with the possible loss of the employment which the great majority of them still enjoy.

There is very general opposition to wage cuts. So long as wages do not suffer a countrywide recession, there is little on which to base the expectation that prices will fall to any extent below their present levels. This should answer the former class of the non-buyers. To the latter, it may be said that they are pursuing the one course of all others best adapted to bring about the conditions they fear.

If those in employment, or those otherwise in posession of means, will expunge fear and expend of their means to meet their ordinary needs, make necessary repairs, alterations or improvements, or otherwise increase the volume of money in circulation, it will not be long till business houses are moving their stocks. This will mean new goods to be purchased, new demands on factories, new openings for labor, new purchaers of goods and so on around the cycle.

In its final analysis, the "Buy Now" movement is one to transform the present-day mass psychology of fear into the psychology of confidence and courage. That done, the country will speedily be on its way back to normal conditions, and unemployment beyond the ordinary will disappear.

SUCH POLITENESS!

Editorial Opinion.

THE ORACLE STAMMERS.

It has become an axiom in national politics that if the party out of power gains control of the house at the midterm elections it will go on to win the presidency two years later. This has held invariably true since 1876. In that year Hayes finally was awarded the victory, although his Democratic opponent received a plurality of the popular vote. Two years previously the Democratic party had won house control.

That is the only exception to the rule in more than half a century. In 1882, with Arthur president following the assassination of Garfield, one of the most famous of the midterm landslides gained the Democrats over 100 house seats and a majority in that body. It was a precursor of Cleveland's victory in the election of 1884. The Democrats retained control of the house in 1886, but nevertheless lost the presidency to Harrison in 1888. The tide swung promptly back, and in the midterm elections of 1890 the Republican party suffered the worst defeat in its history, retaining only eighty-eight house seats. The sequel was Cleveland's second election in 1892.

So it has gone. The Democratic rout of 1894 led to McKinley's victory two years later. The Republicans retained undisputed control of the house, suffering only the customary off-year losses, until 1910. In the election of that year the Democrats won a house majority for the first time in the new century. Republican disharmony grew, and Wilson was elected in 1912. Since overturning Democratic majorities in both house of congress in 1918 and electing Harding in 1920, the Republican sway in the house has been uninterrupted.

When it appeared, on the basis of incomplete returns, that the Democratic party had won control of the house at the last election, many and jubilant were the references of party leaders to this record of fifty years' standing. Jubilance has abated little since it became known that the Republicans retained nominal control by a margin almost too thin to be visible. It is pointed out that in no case has a party retaining the presidency been so direly threatened at the previous midterm elections, and that the Democratic gain is larger than any since 1910.

In view of the unprecedented closeness of the result, the oracle would seem to stammer. And the prophet who wishes to remain infallible had best wait with his predictions for a certain November midnight in 1932. — Cincinnati Enquirer.

Periodicals of the Fifties.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

The civil war had one important effect on Ohio and indeed on all the west at that time, now the Middle West—that is not often referred to. During the fifties there were hundreds of literary periodicals published in this district. Of the number listed ninety were published in Ohio.

The West was still full of romance. The doings of the scouts, the pioneers and the adventurers furnished mines of material which writers of all degrees of ability seized upon and turned into copy for magazines, making features of such tales. The West was known to be the source of such material and somehow the reading public everywhere looked to that quarter for stories and felt that they came fresher and truer when direct from the scenes referred to.

But with the outbreak of the war the people demanded news—news from the front, from Washington, from any place that could furnish information concerning the progress of the great conflict. Suddenly the public lost all taste for fiction, even when it was based on actual facts and those close at hand.

This was true, not only in Ohio, but in all the West, and in the East to a less degree. It was a period in which the newspaper press prospered and developed at the expense of literary publications. As for Ohio and the West, generally there was no general revival of the literary period of after the war. The high-class literary publications were, of course, located in the East, and with the renewal of the demand of the reading public for western tales, the eastern press reaped the benefit of that. There were never so many such publications in the state again.

Ills and the Thyroid.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

We possess several varieties of glands. Among them is the thyroid—one of the "ductless" group which have a decided effect upon growth, health and the general well-being of the body.

All of us are familiar with the appearance of the person who has an enlargement of the thyroid gland. It is the condition known as "goitre," in such a case there is swelling of the neck, and often certain nervous symptoms. But today I wish to speak about the opposite condition. I want to tell you what happens when there has been removal or destruction of the gland.

The absence of the usual secretions of the thyroid gland causes an unpleasant condition known as "myxedema." The patient suffering from myxedema presents a characteristic appearance. The face is somewhat swollen, and the skin is usually dry and rough, as there is little perspiration. The hair is harsh and falls out readily.

Myxedema may result from disease and withering of the thyroid gland, or it may follow the removal of the gland. It has also been thought to be the result of worry or sudden nervous shock. Women seem to be somewhat more susceptible to myxedema than men.

"Cretinism" is a similar condition found in children. It is due to congenital absence of the thyroid gland, or to disease in very early life, causing withering of the gland.

Since absence of the thyroid secretion is responsible for the symptoms, the natural treatment is the administration of extracts made from the thyroid glands of animals. But under no circumstances should this powerful remedy be given except under the physician's supervision. He, and only he, is in a position to determine whether such medication is called for and if it is, what doseage is best.

I have told you about myxedema for your general information and because there is, today, such widespread interest in these mysterious but all-powerful glands of ours. We should know about them and the ills to which they are heir.

In the treatment of myxedema—which is a serious ailment—there are certain measures which are worth bearing in mind. For instance, a warm climate or artificial warmth will keep the patient more comfortable. Hot applications to the neck and massage will help to stimulate the gland.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES.

M C K Q—What can be done for a condition where the large toes cramp and the nails become dark? Sometimes they burn and at other times they are cold, accompanied by a pricking sensation around the nail.

A—Very likely due to some circulatory disturbance. Have an examination so that definite treatment can be outlined.

A J F Q—Is iodine beneficial for the scalp? 2—What do you advise for constipation? Would this cause a continual tired feeling?

A—No. For what purpose is it being used? 2—Proper diet and exercise should correct this trouble. The infection in the system would be very apt to account for the tired feeling. Clear the intestinal tract and you will notice general improvement.

ANXIOUS Q—What can be done for pimples? 2—What is responsible for puffiness of the eyelids and what is the treatment?

A—Correct the diet and keep the system clear. ## Sir William Ramsay.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

Some of the most impressive and spectacular discoveries in the light of modern science are associated with the name of Sir William Ramsay. He once more brought to the fore the ages-old problem of the transmutation of metals.

One of the gases upon which the future of airship development and progress depend is helium gas, of which there are almost unlimited supplies in this country. One of his discoveries was of helium gas on the earth, which will cause his name long to be remembered, not only in the history of chemistry, but also in the history of aeronautics in lighter-than-air machines, which has only just begun.

William Ramsay, born in Glasgow on October 2, 1852, received his education at the university of his native city. He afterwards took his degree of Doctor of Philosophy at the University of Tuebingen, Germany, and became a member of the chemistry staff at his alma mater of Glasgow university.

In 1880, he was appointed professor of chemistry at the University college, Bristol, and soon afterwards his executive and organizing ability caused his election to the post of principal. Some years later he was elected professor of chemistry at University college, London. In 1913, he retired with the rank of professor emeritus.

One of the momentous discoveries of modern science for which the spectroscope is responsible may certainly be ranked the discovery of helium by the British astronomer, Sir Norman Lockyer, in 1868. It was a new element, the fine yellow line close to the sodium lines being found in no other known substance. To this element he gave the name helium, the sun element, from the Greek word for sun, helios.

In 1895, while two young scientists of Cambridge and Oxford, Ernest Rutherford and Frederick Soddy, were studying the fascinating new subject of radioactivity, at Montreal, they made certain discoveries which prompted them to predict that one of the products of decomposition of the emanation from radium salts would prove to be helium. On the invitation of Ramsay, Soddy went to London to work with him. As stated in "The Book of Popular Science."

"The two experimenters dissolved some radium in water, and by a very ingenious device collected and purified the luminous gas that rose above the water, then examined it by means of the spectroscope. After the gas had collected for two days, it was examined, and the spectrum of helium was observed. Ten days afterwards the evolution of helium atoms from radium atoms was so far advanced that the material into which the luminous gas had changed was collected. So that the idea of the transmutation of the elements, found in the days when mankind was ignorant of the existence of the true elements, was at last proved to be an actual fact.

In 1734, Henry Cavendish in seeking to determine the exact nature of the gas left over after he had caused all the oxygen in the atmosphere to unite with hydrogen to form water, found that about 1-120th was not nitrogen. In 1893 Lord Rayleigh, with whom William Ramsay was associated, discovered a new gaseous element which they christened argon, "the lazy one," because it could not be induced to combine with any other element. Two years later, while studying argon, he heated the mineral cleveite in a furnace, and produced a remarkable spectrum. This spectrum showed the spectral line of helium—thus proving that an element, early discovered to exist in the sun, was also found 93,000,000 miles away from the sun, namely on the earth. In 1898, by treating argon in an elaborate way, Ramsay and Travers discovered three news gases, neon, krypton, and xenon. The discovery of these rare gases, which constitute almost one per cent. of the atmosphere, has been termed one of the most remarkable achievements in modern science.

William Ramsay, a great chemist, was knighted in 1902, received the Nobel prize for chemistry in 1904, and died July 23, 1916.—Copyright, 1930, International Feature Service, Inc.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. MINTYRE.

New York, Nov. 15—For ten days I have been struggling hopelessly to raise a mustache. Somewhere I read it were to be all the go this winter. But I gave up the struggle and my upper lip is again back in the open and I face the hooters.

I even forgive Clarabell Walsh who on the third day of the sprout had my coffee cup at her dinner party in an old-fashioned mustache cup. Frankly I neither aspire to be of those western sheriff droopers nor a new start affair, suggesting two stuffed grasshopper grass, like Paul Whiteman's.

What I wanted was just a plain mustache, family style mustache that would be worthy of its wild loveliness without barbers' pomade, expert combing or a slip on cover when I retired for the night. I realized I would have to be much as a mustache stroker.

Indeed there have been rumors I forgot to comb my hair half the time. The results in my mustache experimentation was that nothing had no symmetry. It grew six days and by the time it reached maturity resembled an outcast toothbrush that had been ward's stepped on. You know—bla a.

Watching it was like gazing at a dog to see which way it would jump. It was a bit of kilter and cock-eyed from the start. But I left it alone for another week it was like trailing arbutus, been running down the back of my collar.

At first it was great fun. I would rub it at night and then pop into the bathroom to note progress in the mirror. One night on inspection my wife called out sleepily, "The magnifying glass is on top your dressing table." But she didn't have to add that all the girls chase you tomorrow.

I think about the sixth day enthusiasm began to cool. The mustache had the appearance of suddenly growing tired of it all and wilting. I tried to perk it up with petting and despite discouragement I decided to hang on a while longer.

I have endured calumny and smart cracks and jeers about spats for years, but they don't put a candle to a growing mustache for unsparing sarcasm. Persons I had only known casually for years grew suddenly intimate. A cross-town cop called out cheerfully, "I've seen worse in the Police Gazette pictures."

* * *

And I distinctly heard the switchboard operator in a certain building say to another man as I passed: "There goes the personality boy!"

* * *

Nor was I too deaf to catch that remark of a celery blond waitress in a Madison avenue restaurant who after turning away with my order whispered to one of her sisters: "I'm sure he must be alive. It breathes."

* * *

It went like this everywhere for nine days, preceeding the shearing, including the air of unforgivable thrust of the chorus girl rehearsing the stage entrance of the New Amsterdam when she chirped to her companion after a glance at me. "Virile Vincent! I bet he could open a train window."

* * *

Frank Sullivan offers a crumb of comfort in relating why Harold Ross, editor of the New Yorker got rid of his stiff and well-discussed pompadour and now has a heavy flat hair. It seems Ina Claire in beholding the pompadour across the dining-room of the Algonquin sighed and said she would never be happy until she could take off her shoes and wade through Ross' hair. That decided him.

* * *

One thing I learn about mustaches. There is a decided art in growing them. You can't merely quit shaving and trust to luck. When you see one like, say Adolphe Menjou's, that depend upon it he has coaxed, fawned upon and sat up with it nights for years. Mustaches, unlike columnists, don't just happen.

* * *

You wouldn't think men with over-Niagara mustaches like Laurence D'Orsey had time to accomplish anything. But I have seen them become presidents of first national banks in towns like Ottumwa, Iowa, and everything.

* * *

With my luck I'm better off without a mustache. It would probably freeze up and fall off this winter anyway.—Copyright, 1930, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

The Sights of Bombay.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

What more fitting than to begin seeing the sights of Bombay with the Welcome arch located near the Taj Mahal hotel and the Ballard dock. Built in honor of the visit of the Prince of Wales in 1921, it is a huge structure which can be seen for many miles. Voluntary contributions of the citizens of Bombay paid for it.

Another memorial to the reigning family of Great Britain is seen in the Victoria and Albert museum, built in 1858 upon the occasion of Queen Victoria's receiving the title of "Empress of India." The museum is open to the public.

The Jamsetjee Jeejeebhoy hospital is well worth the time it takes to go through. It is the gift of an enormously wealthy Parsee after whom it is named. There are rooms for 500 patients.

The Crawford market is a model of its kind. The articles offered for sale are each in a separate building, which opens upon a small garden, the whole business being surmounted by a clock tower 128 feet high.

One of the most interesting sights is the Walkeshwar temple, sacred to the sand from the sunken well with its towers, situated on Malabar hill, not far from the "Towers of Silence." The Shirgundi is a cleft in the rock at Malabar point. Here is found the Walkeshwar tank, a place of pilgrimage, with shrines, temples and holy wells.

A word of advice to those visiting Bombay. It is safer not to drink the water when it is served. If you must have water drink the bottled varieties.

The native city abounds in bazaars where exquisitely wrought brass and copper, as well as teakwood, ivories, sandalwood and other carvings may be purchased. You will find a native merchant well able to take care of himself when it comes to driving a bargain. He is like you to do, too.

There are two comfortable hotels, the Taj Mahal and the Majestic, both imposing in appearance.

The "Courts of Justice" is a building 1,000 feet long, with a tower 175 feet high and very imposing. Another imposing building is that used by the governor general and his staff known as the presidential secretariat.

17 INDICTMENTS ARE RETURNED

Special To The Star

BUCYRUS Nov. 15 Seventeen indictments were returned by the September term of grand jury shortly Friday afternoon after the jury had been in session four days.

The grand jury failed to return indictments as a result of the alleged irregularities at Lykens precinct during the August primaries although the entire election board of that precinct were examined by the jury.

Public indictments were Adam Ray Lady driving a motor vehicle without the owner's consent, Ray Eggleson and Harry H. Lee alias Harry LaRue both of Columbus burglary and Clarence Moyer, burglary and larceny.

In commenting on the election irregularities the jury reported that "there was doubtless some remission on the part of all the precinct officials but that the laxity does not warrant any further punishment than the disciplinary action already visited by the county board of elections." The entire election board of Lykens precinct were dismissed when it was discovered following the August primaries that the Republican officials had voted the Democratic ballot.

Confucius Showed Wise Forethought

By The Schoffner-Queen Co.

Confucious that fountain of wisdom of age old China—dictated to his people one, single, simple rule governing the conduct of funerals.

It was that "all things be done decently and in order . . ." and that "the family circumstances be taken into account."

Over two thousand years ago, that was—and yet his dictum is so sound, appropriate and all-inclusive that it might well be followed as a guiding principle in even these more-enlightened and exacting times!

For the reliable, conscientious funeral director of today particularly prides himself on doing everything "decently and in order!"—with the finest in equipment, and the utmost in ability and service—and invariably he sees to it that "the family circumstances be taken into account!"

This is the third of a series of editorial advertisements appearing in this paper each Saturday. Copyright, 1930.

Delphian Club To Hold Sale of Articles Made by Blind

CITIZENS of the city and county will again be given an opportunity next week to help the blind of the state in helping themselves by patronizing the sale of articles made by them and sponsored by the Delphian club Nov. 18, 19 and 20 at the Uhler-Phillips store, it was announced today by Mrs. Louis Uhl, chairman of the work.

Beginning this year the sale of articles made by the blind will be a federation project and members of the organization are requested to support it to the extent of making good the slogan, "A tea towel for every club woman." Club presidents are being asked by the state federation through Mrs. Uhl to sponsor the sale individually in her club and also interest her friends in the project.

Articles on sale will include tea towels, dish clothes, ironing board covers and aprons. The consignment also includes a number of fancy articles of needlework. The sales which are sponsored throughout the country by women's clubs, aids hundreds of blind women earn a livelihood as the work is done in their homes, and keeps them from idleness.

The sale as a project is new in the city as the Delphian club sponsored it individually six years ago.

Wayside Rose Lodge Nominates Officers

The first nomination of officers was held at the meeting of Wayside Rose Rebekah lodge No. 555 last night in the Odd Fellows hall. Announcement was made of the meeting of the Loyal Circle Friday at the home of Mrs. Grace Cylinder on Uncapher avenue.

"—did you know that Mrs. Martin is a consistent Want-Ad reader?"

"Well she is, and what's more after talking to her yesterday I'm becoming a Want-Ad reader myself . . . I just happened to make casual mention of that spiffy car she's been driving lately and believe it or not she found 'THAT' bargain in the Want-Ads, and when I say found, I mean just that, for at the price she paid it WAS just like finding it.

"What's more she uses a want-ad of her own every now and then too, when she bought that lovely new living room suite, she advertised her old furniture and sold it for enough to buy several new pieces for her bed room . . believe me Grace I've found a profitable means of disposing of all those things that have been cluttering up my attic — ah, here's MY ad right here, see it — well I must get ready for MY customers."

That had been two weeks ago. It was becoming imperative that Grannock should be told of his brother's death. And there had been no news of Hallie.

Probably she imagined that in spite of Grannock's blindness he must have been made aware of the full details of the tragedy and that he knew now at last what she had hidden from him.

Dr. Lytton was sitting with Grannock in his hotel room one afternoon, when the telephone rang.

"A Miss Rose Conaldine to see Mr. Grannock," said the clerk.

Lytton repeated the message.

"Ask her to come up," said Grannock. His voice shook.

"I'll get out, old man," said Lytton. "And look here, Grannock, if—there may be—Miss Conaldine may bring news that will upset you——"

Lytton opened the door to the girl who came in.

"But, good heavens, you're not—is your name Conaldine?"

He saw her color change. She was very blonde.

"I beg yoour pardon," Lytton stammered, "but we were expecting another Miss Rose Conaldine. You are a relative, of course."

"Well, yes, in a way. Are you—no, of course, this is Mr. Grannock."

Grannock was on his feet by now.

"I have come to see you. You see I was brought up to believe that Clement Conaldine was my father. And I've done very wrong. I've no business to come worrying you after you've had such awful trouble. But they told me at the Broon house that she might perhaps be here with you—the other Rose Conaldine."

"If you require the address of the Miss Conaldine I know," said Grannock, evidently bewildered, "I can't give it to you. As to the rest of what you said, I don't follow it."

Lytton made violent signs to the little blonde.

"Oh!" gasped the girl, crimson. "Oh, I am sorry if—but I never imagined——"

"Lytton," said Grannock, "there's been something you've been keeping from me. Something——"

'Old man, it's nothing about your Rose—nothing. It's only that Lester has been getting into trouble. He—well, he had a row with someone who turned out to be Clement Conaldine. You know, the man who was wanted for murder years ago."

He drew a shaky breath.

"And you say that Conaldine was—no, he wasn't your father?"

The girl broke into tears.

"First Mr. Perle said he was, although he didn't marry my mother," she sobbed. "I was shown a letter from him to Mr. Perle saying that I was to have some of his money. Only we shared it——

"Who?"

"Mr. Perle and I." She fought with her tears. "I believe Mr. Perle stole—embezzled—a lot of it years ago and all he did like bringing me up to believe it was mine was just his devilish way of getting it back. He reckoned, you see, that I'd do anything rather than give it up. But now he's disappeared and people—some other lawyers—are asking questions—and I simply must find his daughter and give what is left of it back to her."

Grannock tried in vain to stem the torrent.

'He told me first, the devil, that he didn't know where she was and then after the murd— after it was all made public about Clement Conaldine she came to see him and arranged that we were to share the money. Only, really, Perle planned to get nearly all my share. And then he disappeared. And I can't find her from his address-book either under Conaldine or Ellesmore——"

"Ellesmore?" said Grannock.

"Why, yes—that was her name, wasn't it? The name Rose called herself by until only a short time ago? It was under that name that she trained to be a nurse."

"Lytton:"

"It's all right, old man—it's all right. You were bound to know some time——"

He strode across the room as Grannock put up a hand and pulled at his bandages.

"Hullo!" shouted Lytton.

"Yes," said Grannock. "Yes, I can see you, doc."

Weeks later Dr. Lytton finally had found Hallie, but his efforts to get her to return to Grannock had been futile.

"Can you honestly assure me he wants me now that he knows I am the woman who blinded him" she had asked.

And Lytton had been forced to admit, wretchedly that Grannock had said nothing at all about her.

Then Hallie had come to him one day, radiantly happy.

"He does want me!" she cried. 'He advertised as he promised, when we first met on the cliff." She held out a newspaper. In the personal column were the words—"To the Ivory Rose—Come Home."

It was dusk when they met, as it had been on that first night. The ivory rose was in her hand but Grannock put it aside when she dumbly held it out to him.

"Say something to me" he besought her, his own voice shaking "I want to hear you first—before I see you."

"Do you forgive me, my dearest love?"

He caught her to him, turned up her face to his and looked at her. Looked and looked again.

"Yes," he whispered. "Yes, you are lovely, my ivory rose. And you've come home."

The End.

Jubilee's Pardner

• • •

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD W. LEWIS

SATURDAY. Jubilee's bites aren't well yet, but he don't squinch up and holler when I touch them, so I got the rope out from under the board in the garret and let him down anyhow, so he was lucky. If I had carried him down my ant might have been laying for us. She was never a boy and had a dog that she loved.

I got to thinking about her when I had put on my britches and was going downstairs, and I thought I would go and peek in her room and see how she looked sleeping in those things, but I was too late. She was standing up and taking them off to put her clothes on, and she must have seen me out of the corner of her eyes, for she gave a yell, and then she gave another one, and by the time she gave the third one I had the milk pail and was out doors and half way to the barn. The bunch got there before I got done milking, and I told them about my ants sleeping clothes and Whitey said they were pajammers and all ladies wear them to sleep in. I told him my mother is a lady and she don't and then he said she is old fashioned.

I went in to strain the milk and feed my face, and my grandfather and my ant were fussing at each other, and he was saying he didn't do anything of the kind, and she said she saw him as plain as day, and then Younlss and Feeble and Maggie came in, and Feeble asted what the trouble was and my ant said she wasn't going to have any old roey poking his nose into her room when she was dressing, and my grandfather just snorted. I didn't say anything. Then everyone was eating breakfast and saying nothing, and all at once Younlss made a noise like she had went flat, and we all looked around and there was Maggie the gurl that got fascinated on her leg, and she had went in my ant's room and put on the new pajamers, and she was strutting around the table with one hand on her hip, and my ant jumped and grabbed her and flang her on the lounge and gave a yank at the pants and Maggie screamed and my ant yelled, because my ant thought Maggie had put them on over her clothes, and she hadn't. Maggie and my ant done a fadeout for my ant's room trying to climb over each other. When my ant came out and sot down looking like a thunderstorm, we all watched for Maggie, and finely my mother asted my ant where she was, and my ant said she had clumb out of her bedroom window and went home. I don't blame her.

We waited whilst Feeble got her air rifle and we all went to the stink factory hunting rats. She is a good shot. She hit a lot of them. It don't kill them, but it certainly makes them jump. I had to mind Annabelle Lee all the afternoon, but Younlss and Feeble stayed. But Maggie didn't show up. I am glad she didn't. We were all too ashamed to even mention her name.

Love's Reawakening

A Wife's Triumph Over Jealousy

BY ADELE GARRISON

Throws the First Shadow Over the Celebration.

CHRISTMAS EVE! And everything finished,—ready for the holiday on the morrow.

Fatigued, but happy and excited as I always am at Christmas, I stood in the hall doorway and then walked slowly through the rooms reveling in their brave beauty.

I have no sympathy with the modern Scrooges who in their desire to be "different" look with supercilious scorn upon what they call the "stereotyped" Christmas. To me the blessed holiday means all the old traditions, from mince pie to mistletoe, and as I wandered from one room to another I felt the glow which always comes to me when the Christmas preparations are completed.

The living room at the farm is really two, which are always thrown together, and which have at the end an immense bay window. In this the Christmas tree towered, beautiful in its symmetry, but as yet untrimmed. Everything else, however, was completed. Over every door and window and over the archways, branches of laurel and of the ground pine which Robbert Savarin had sent with his portrait of Marion to Lillian, formed a frame for the brilliant holly berries. Ropes of laurel and ground pine made a leafy lane of the staircase, and from every chandelier depended clusters of holly and mistletoe. Over the mantels in living room, dining room and library were immense wreaths of holly, and sprays of the glistening leaves and berries were tucked behind the candle scones and the pictures. The lights, mostly shaded, were all turned on, and the soft radiance fell upon the background of green with Philip Veritzen's roses blossoming from all corners. I had divided them, putting two or three in each vase and placing them as unobstrusively as possible upon the book cases, the piano and the tables. But I noticed uneasily that the beautiful crystal and silver container filled with roses which Mr. Veritzen had handed me as a "wish for a merry Christmas" was so conspicuous in its place of honor in the center of the dining table that no one coming into the room could overlook it or fail to admire it.

But Dicky neither looked at it nor commented upon it when he came downstairs dressed for the evening and joined me in my tour of the rooms. Was it possible that he had not noticed it, or had he guessed from whom it came, and was he determinedly repressing his disapproval and pique because it was Christmas time?

Whatever his reaction, I was grateful for the respite, and I put my hand upon his arm, caressingly.

"It is a lovely Christmas, isn't it, Dicky?" I asked.

"Best as far as the decorations go," he responded, but there was no particular enthusiasm in his voice and he did not put his hand over mine as he generally does when I slip it through his arm. I knew then, that he [illegible] suspected the [illegible] roses, [illegible]

I would not permit that shadow to spoil my Christmas, I told myself fiercely, I answered him brightly.

Dicky's Pique

"I think it's going to be the best in every way," I said determinedly.

"Because of the extra guests?" he queried, and there was an unpleasant note in his voice.

"Yes, just that," I returned. "Christmas needs a lot of youngsters to be complete and we have 'em here of all ages."

"Not all, he said, and there was an odd hesitancy in the words. "There's no child younger than Junior.

Again I wondered if I fancied an unconscious note of reproach in his voice. I do not know what answer I would have made but I was spared the necessity for answering. My father came up behind me at the instant and slipped his arm around me.

"Another Christmas Eve," he said fondly, "for the sweetest Christmas fairly in the world."

"I never can equal that compliment, Dad," Dicky said with the deference he always gives my father, "so I'll just hunt up the boys and find out what they're up to. I don't want any chance of their discovering things beforehand."

"I can't tell you where Henry and William are," I told him smiling, "but Junior and Roderick won't be hard to find. They're in the breakfast nook off the kitchen with Katherine and your mother, and Katie is serving them all supper. We're having the meal in relays tonight."

"Suppose I take Hank and Bill for the next inning," Dicky suggested, "unless you and Dad are especially hungry. Then you two, with Mary and Noel, can eat in peace, and I'll keep an eye on my two older nephews. I know Katrina won't let the other two out of her sight. What say to my plan?"

"I think it's a very good one," I told him, but as he walked away the little intangible shadow deepened. Had he given me the real reason for his choice of companions, or did he not wish to eat supper with me?

by MATEEL HOWE FARNHAM

SYNOPSIS

Fanny Harding pretty daughter of a poor German music teacher, fails to meet with the approval of her mother-in-law after her sudden marriage to David Frost. The elder Mrs. Frost, strait-laced old-fashioned leader of the Frost Brownbeck clan, ostracizes the little town of Cloughbarre, Pennsylvania, cannot forgive David for breaking his engagement to rich Mary Morton to marry Fanny. When David talks of moving with his wife to a cottage of their own Mrs. Frost persuades David's uncle to refuse him a requested raise in salary at the bank. David quits his job gets another and they move as planned. Then the baby, Sheila is born. Ben Daniels unhappily married to wealthy Lola Brownbeck a distant cousin of David's spends a good deal of time with Fanny finding in her a kindred spirit in his dislike for the Brownbeck clan.

CHAPTER 6

Insult Added to Injury

DAVID sometimes told himself that all he thought about now adays was dollars and pence, dollars and pence chiefly pence.

He had had two promotions and his salary raised first to $100 and then to $125 a month, but the high-powered leaps in the cost of living far outstripped the modest additions to his income.

David had a bad habit of keeping things to himself in the foolish idea that he was sparing Fanny by not mentioning his deeper worries.

He was forced to budget their small income remorselessly and forbid Fanny to run any bills. Even so she was always short before the end of the month.

It would have been no more distasteful to David to flay Fanny with whip than to heckle and quarrel with her over a few wretched dollars, but he could not bear the thought of debt.

"Are you sure that everything is paid—that there is nothing else" he would demand of Fanny, masking his natural shrinking by the inquisitorial manner of a case hardened drill sergeant.

It made David so unhappy when Fanny admitted she had disobeyed him and run up a bill that, more for David's sake than her own Fanny would fib gallantly, wondering desperately meanwhile whether she could appeal again to Amelia or if there wasn't another wedding present she might pawn or sell. When the truth later came out, as it usually did, David overlooked the gallantry and understood only that Fanny was untruthful.

"Darling," she said one evening "did it ever occur to you that the loveliest words in the English language begin with D?"

"Such as debt, dandruff, devil, drudge?" asked David.

"I was thinking of dear, darling, David, devoted, dawn. It isn't nice of you to spoil my compliment."

"I am not feeling very nice this evening."

"Dearest—I didn't mean—I was only trying to be funny."

"We are not amused," said David, and grinned a little sheepishly. He held out his hand and Fanny came and sat on a cushion at his feet, leaning her cheek against his palm.

"David, if you ever get tired of me will you tell me?"

"Why should I get tired of you?"

"I didn't ask you why? I asked you were you?"

"I'll go into executive session and let you know tomorrow. But why the inquisition? Are you getting tired of me—or of Sheila?"

"When you tell me whether you're tired of me I'll tell you whether I'm tired of you. But mothers never get tired of their children." She added in a lower voice—"Hardly any mothers."

David smiled down on her, patted her cheek.

"Are you, David?"

"No."

Fanny hadn't felt so happy, so certain of David's love in a long time. She would not admit that sometimes she was a little afraid of her husband. When David shut her away from him, brooded without telling her why, she was confused and unhappy, but her delicacy of perception taught her to respect David's innate reserve and to conceal her own hurt.

There was nothing very serious the matter with David, nothing he could not have shared with Fanny—should not have shared. David's life hitherto had been a little too easy. At college his way had been smoothed by prominent older cousins. Now he was in the throes of the inevitable disillusioning that, from the days of Adam, has lashed and harried sensitive youth face to face for the first time with the hard bitter facts of the struggle for existence.

David had been assured at home, in school, in college, that in America at least any bright young man who was honest, trustworthy, and willing to work hard and intelligently was bound to get ahead quickly and be rewarded according to his just deserts. Books and magazines preached the same pleasing soporific: captains of industry blandly ascribed thrift and untiring industry as reasons for their rapid rise to the top.

David confronted a Puritan conscientiousness with an overactive imagination. He had learned to question his body but not his imagination, and his anticipations of consequence ran not one way or the other.

He was especially hopeful of rapid advancement after the president of the company, Mr. Tuttle, had him up in his office to commend him when he made him assistant superintendent.

"Your salary will be less than Simpson's was," Mr. Tuttle said, "but you've been with us a short time and had less experience. As you make yourself more valuable your pay will increase."

That had been a year and a half ago, and David's salary remained stationary. David's immediate superior was Jim Tuttle son of the owner. Jim was paid $6000 a year and was worth about a sixth of it. David liked and respected the elder Tuttle. He would never admit that Mr. Tuttle deliberately had singled him out to do Jim's work at a nominal salary. But when Jim, by flagrant carelessness, ruined a $10,000 order and tried to throw the blame on David, the records themselves proved Jim guilty and David blameless. Mr. Tuttle ignored the matter.

The Tuttle Hitchcock Co. was the only business of any size in Cloughbarre that was not controlled in one way or another by David's relations or connections. His uncle, David knew, was willing and anxious to have him back at the bank. There had been hints that he had only to swallow his pride, admit that he could not make a living unaided to be shoved ahead of better men at his uncle's bidding. But it was vital to David's self-respect that he prove that he could make his own way.

Then came the World war. The week after the United States opened hostilities David went to his uncle and asked him if he would provide for Fanny and Sheila in case he enlisted.

Mr. Brownbeck had once been cruelly snubbed by an Englishman, and had halted the British nation ever since; he had vigorously objected to his country entering the war on the same side with the British. Now he growled at David. "Certainly not, why should I?"

"No reason at all—except that our family stands for something in this town and community. You've always deplored the spread of socialism and class hatred. But how can you expect anything else if the men of fighting age of the upper families, the rich families, hang back and ask the day laborers to go out and fight in their places?"

"There are plenty of the members of this family enlisting—or planning to." He named seven of David's cousins. "But as yet there is no reason for calling the married men with small children. When there is come back again." He added abruptly, "I hear you've been made assistant superintendent?"

"Yes, sir."

"Under that ass Jim Tuttle?"

Under Mr. Tuttle; Jim's just a figurehead."

"I suppose it has never occurred to you—for all you're so smart—that Clem Tuttle is squeezing the marrow out of your bones to make a fat living for his worthless son?"

It was a week before David recovered from the humiliation of that interview. In those troubled days it was no trifle to David, rather a heartbreak, that Fanny did not trust him enough to be frank with him—that she told him fibs. David called them lies.
